Supervisor Jeffries Retirement Recognition

We have been blessed to have Supervisor Jeffries in Riverside County for the past twelve years. He is known for getting things done, without long speeches or government bureaucracy. At the final Board of Supervisor's meeting he played a humorous video making light of all he accomplished. And it was a lot! From new roads, community centers, lighting and support for firefighters, he responded to the needs of the communities he led.

It was also great to see the positive influence he provided to the other Supervisors. One was a friend he fished with, but it was moving to see the honor he received for mentoring a newer Supervisor who was on the opposite side of the political spectrum.

Supervisor Jeffries will be missed. In the twenty plus years we have lived here we have never seen one so responsive to and willing to work towards what our community preferred.

We pray for a great retirement in Idaho for him enjoying his wife, family and grandchildren!

A Look Comparing President-Elect Trump's to President Kennedy's Tax Stance

Are you seeing similarities between John F. Kennedy's tax ideas and President-Elect, Donald J. Trump's? (Both were also shot at, but Trump escaped harm by what seems the hand of God.)

Trump's tax proposals include bringing back the tariffs on imported goods. This encourages American business and some believe may allow for more prospering of our economy.

1. Reducing corporate tax to 15%

2. Ending tax on tips and overtime

Wait and see on proposals like elimination of income tax or no capital gains on crypto

- Sonia Duffy, American College of Financial Services as reported by Yahoo Finance 12/3/24

Compare the above plans of President Trump with the following by President Kennedy on P.2

What is Happening with Our Donkeys?!

In August 2024, the Highgrove Happenings reported on San Bernardino County's Bill they passed to ship the donkeys to Texas! The Peaceful Valley Donkey Rescue, based in Texas, has offered to manage and relocate our wild burros to Texas.

WHY ship them to Texas? We have options here!

Riverside County passed a measure (at about the same time) allowing for the relocation of wild donkeys that are in immediate danger to DonkeyLand, a local donkey rescue organization. This initiative focuses on saving those animals most at risk, primarily from traffic incidents.

However, local groups and both counties are not in agreement on how this should be handled. (<https://main.sbcounty.gov/2024/12/12/county-teams-up-with-donkeyland-to-relocate-burros-to-sanctuary/>)

San Bernardino County states that local organizations like DonkeyLand do not have the capacity to handle the number of donkeys needing relocation. Donkeyland says that they do.

Although the burros often roam Reche Canyon (considered San Bernardino County for mail purposes), the Burros roam the streets of Riverside County into Moreno Valley (also Riverside County) more. Whose donkeys are they anyway?

HIGHGROVE HAPPENINGS

"Our present tax system ... exerts too heavy a drag on growth ... It reduces the financial incentives for personal effort, investment, and risk-taking ... The present tax load ... distorts economic judgments and channels an undue amount of energy into efforts to avoid tax liabilities."

- John F. Kennedy, Nov. 20, 1962, press conference

"A bill will be presented to the Congress for action next year. It will include an across-the-board, top-to-bottom cut in both corporate and personal income taxes. It will include long-needed tax reform that logic and equity demand ... The billions of dollars this bill will place in the hands of the consumer and our businessmen will have both immediate and permanent benefits to our economy. Every dollar released from taxation that is spent or invested will help create a new job and a new salary. And these new jobs and new salaries can create other jobs and other salaries and more customers and more growth for an expanding American economy."

Giving Has Issues: Alexis deToqueville & Today

Alexis de Tocqueville was a man from France in the mid 1800s who came to America to find out why America was spoken of so highly. He concluded that, "America is great because America is good." He seemed to conclude that our morality was why we were so prosperous.

Then he noticed a strange phenomenon in Europe. They had mandated, "Poor Laws" or "national, legal, compulsory, public, secular system of relief. The caring for the poor that was once the domain of the church, became part of government in, "the sixteenth century when the dissolution of the monasteries obliged the government to provide for the indigent..."

The result of such government relief?

* A substantial rise in the number of poor (almost one-fifth of the national expenditure)

*A decrease in wages

*Fewer people willing to work to pay the bill for the poor

*A rise in agricultural unemployment

*A fall in productivity

*Higher food prices

*Population increase (relief encouraged earlier marriages and more children)

*Still lower wages (because of the increase of population) which was "said to contribute to the pauperization and demoralization of the poor.

The most interesting paradox that deTocqueville documented in his book, Memoir on Pauperism, was, "the tantalizing picture of a Europe in which the most impoverished countries have the least number of paupers, while the most opulent country, England, had the most. He's not the only one who found that giving has issues.

"Absentee ballots remain the largest source of potential voter fraud." –Jimmy Carter, 2005

When residents asked for their park back after homeless tents took over their park, the Mayor of Chicago said they didn't have the money. Residents had a problem with that since he had just spent half a billion dollars on migrants there. After some consideration he offered to make a five year plan to end homelessness. Wonder what this has to do with Highgrove, California? The plan appears eerily similar to Newsom's 2003 plan when Mayor-elect of San Francisco to create a ten year plan to end chronic homelessness. He decided federal funding to create new "supportive housing" was in order. Homelessness and crime is even worse there than here.

He was also in charge of spending $24Billion to end homelessness as governor of California - then vetoing a bill to see where the money went.

Did you know Riverside's current Mayor used to be San Francisco's prior Mayor?

Have you been to San Francisco lately?

Proposed Mileage Tax by Macie LePenske

Newsom is trying to implement a new tax called the milage tax. And yes it's in addition to our gas tax. The supposed reason for that is electric vehicle drivers are getting taxed per year $118 which is one third of what they would usually pay in taxes for gas per year. But this milage tax wouldn't just apply to them but everyone who drives a car whether it's gas or electric. According to CAroadcharge.com, our gas taxes has already gone up from fifty- eight cents to sixty-seven cents per gallon at the pump in two years, which is crazy! Depending on how much you drive around seven hundred dollars extra per year. ReformCalifornia.org says an average two parent house hold will be charged an estimated three thousand dollars a year from this tax. California already has the highest state taxes on gas!

You might be asking yourself, "how would the government even know how much I'm driving?" And oh boy, if you're like me you're not going to like that answer! They want to put trackers on our cars to not only track how many miles we have driven but also...

Research on Baby's Best Start (By Dr. Mercola)

"Breast milk provides a unique, dynamic blend of antibodies, hormones and stem cells that adapt to infant needs, offering superior benefits compared to formula feeding

The formula industry's marketing tactics and hospital practices have normalized formula feeding, undermining breastfeeding through medical institutional funding and strategic advertising campaigns

Oxytocin released during breastfeeding strengthens mother-child bonding, reduces postpartum health risks and helps regulate babies' emotional development while providing long-term health benefits

Modern medical interventions and arbitrary growth charts create unnecessary barriers to breastfeeding, often leading to premature formula supplementation despite normal infant development patterns

Extended breastfeeding, naturally occurring between 2.5 to 7 years, faces cultural stigma in Western societies, despite its benefits for immune system development and emotional resilience..."

[Editor's Commentary: I breastfed our two children (one to three years old!) and was a Nutritional Consultant and a mom over the last 30+ years, so I know from experience as well as research.

One thing I learned is what a powerful immune boost this was for our children!

But not only that, it gave me such peace of mind when something was, "going around" when I had an infant, I would let him or her nurse more and the next day my production was up - full of the antibodies to protect the littlest one!

If you are struggling breastfeeding, don't give up! Reach out to LaLeche League or if you'd like a contact I know personally, reach out to me and I'll be happy to put you in touch!

want us to get an app on our phone for "us" to pinpoint where our car is at any given moment. They will have access to it all! Our government also wants us to get odometer inspections annually to make sure we aren't tampering with them. And you better bet you will be paying for those inspections not the government! That means more of your hard earned money out of your pocket.

Our government says they supposedly spent eight million dollars a year on fixing our roads. I second guess how real that is due to the amount of pot holes we see on a daily basis. I don't understand how electric vehicle drivers are getting taxed less than others who pay for gas and everyone having to pay the mileage tax. I understand the concept of the mileage tax and in other states it's only electric vehicles that have that tax and not gas cars paying that tax.

Right now this mileage tax is in a pilot phase in San Diego and reform California has a petition to sign to help stop us from being taxed that extra several hundred dollars. Our country was founded because we revolted from a small tea tax and now, the mileage tax proves we are giving our government too much leeway.

Leonardo Sens spent three years attempting to make this picture happen irl. Can we trust our eyes?

HIGHGROVE HAPPENINGS

Bird Flu by Who Is Robert Malone on Substack
(Robert Malone, PhD, Developed the first mRNA technology, regretted it and has been vocal to save lives since.)

“As influenza A(H5) virus infections in domesticated animals continue to spread, the risk for human infection could rise. In an abundance of caution, we are taking steps to increase the amount of vaccine that could be immediately available if needed.”

BARDA Director and Deputy Assistant Secretary for Preparedness and Response

Gary Disbrow, Ph.D.

A vaccine, mRNA-1018, is being developed for people, not for cattle. It is a pandemic influenza vaccine designed for human use. Specifically:

Moderna is developing the mRNA Bird Flu “vaccine” (mRNA-1018) for the prevention of pandemic influenza in humans. Clinical trials are being conducted on human participants. For example, a Phase I/II trial evaluated the safety and immunogenicity of mRNA-1018 in healthy human volunteers. Of interest, the $176 million was awarded in year 2024, yet the clinical trial listed was completed prior to award. So, there must be plans to either piggy-back on to this clinical trial in some manner (there is an arm for H5 only in the listed clinical trial) for expedited approval for this particular strain.

GSK, Sanofi, CSL have also collectively won $72 million in BARDA funding to boost bird flu vaccine supply.

A May, 2024 AP article explains that the U.S. Agriculture Department is to begin testing a mRNA avian flu vaccine for cattle developed by University of Pennsylvania researchers by giving it to calves. However, this strategy is being kept under wraps, the USDA website does not list this experiment or this development on their website. Nor does the University of Pennsylvania.

Note the headline below from Fierce Pharma is from 2015. When they tell you what they plan to do, believe them.

It seems pretty obvious that the government is gearing up to encourage or even mandate poultry, dairy farmers as well as their workers, and maybe even cattle ranchers to be vaccinated. Of course, all hospital and medical care professionals will be mandated to comply. The elderly and immunocompromised will also be encouraged to vaccinate against the HIGHLY PATHOGENIC (to birds...) avian flu. Stockpiles will soon be developed by BARDA for discounted or free vaccines for those who qualify.

Next will be the requirement for all lactating cattle crossing state borders to be vaccinated. The USDA will track down as many small farmers and milk producers as possible so that the proper registration/ear tagging of cattle occurs.

If you don't want to buy meat or drink milk from cattle vaccinated with an mRNA "vaccine", it is prudent to locate a local supplier now. When the government rolls out these programs, you likely will be scrambling - if you don't have clean sources for your food now.

Likewise, there will be an outright PR effort to stop people from drinking raw milk. If not mandated, all dairy farmers will be encouraged to vaccinate their cattle. A particular effort will be made to register and vaccinate cows that supply the raw milk industry. Track and tracing of cattle will be the next big push by the USDA, in an effort to vaccinate for a mRNA virus that rapidly mutates, with a failed vaccination strategy aimed at a rapidly mutating virus.

Even traditional vaccines are ineffective against transmission. The current flu vaccine is inadequate to stop the spread of the virus to household members 79% of the time.

As the government throws money at these new vaccines, there is no evidence that it will stop the transmission or even spread of this virus in cattle or people.

This all costs money, requires many bull sh*t jobs, and will make our milk, meat and eggs more expensive. Furthermore, locally sourced products will become more challenging to obtain. Maybe this is by design.

Indeed, the current hysteria around avian flu benefits big Agriculture. Smaller farms struggling with regulatory burdens may be forced to exit the market or be acquired by larger companies, leading to increased market concentration and larger factory farms.

Bird Flu (Cont. From P. 9)

Of course, the long-term solution that big ag and governments don't want to hear is that factory farming has to stop. As of July 2024, over 100 million chickens and turkeys have been culled in the United States alone since the outbreak began in 2022, estimates are that this has cost the US taxpayer almost one billion dollars. The problem is that modern chicken factories house 20,000 to 40,000 chickens each.

They are little mutant virus factories.

The truth is, that viruses are everywhere. It is normal to be exposed to a vast number of viruses every day. Our immune system needs to be exposed to many pathogens to learn to protect us from viral and bacterial pathogens better. Everyday, we need to go outside into the world and breath in the air, expose ourselves to the workings of nature. We need to be in the sun and supplement with vitamin D3 and vitamins like K2, A and E that work in balance with vitamin D3. Another important supplement is magnesium, which is necessary for activating vitamin D in the body.

COVID Vaccines Damaged Millions of Children's Hearts

This is an unprecedented Tragedy
Dec 14, 2024

From the moment the COVID vaccines rolled out, Americans knew that something wasn't right. These shots were brought to market far too quickly and didn't undergo the necessary testing to ensure their safety and efficacy. Nevertheless, the "experts" insisted COVID immunizations were all good and demonized anyone who so much as asked questions.

It didn't take time for skeptics to be proven right. For starters, these shots did not stop the spread of the virus, nor did they prevent individuals from exhibiting COVID...

[Head to Substack for rest of article and links to research.]

Our Wild Donkeys? (Cont. from Front P.)

If the goal is to reduce the risk to both the burros and residents due to overpopulation, and traffic incidents according to ABC, does it make sense to transport them to Texas?

Is Community Work an Option for Donkeys?

Some suggest that we could put the donkeys to work in the community by training the donkeys could be trained for work tasks like clearing brush (are they helping now with the vacant lots?) or participating in educational programs. (Of course this would take money and time. Because they are wild animals, would it be feasible.[See last month's issue for CSA126 funds...]

Could We Expand the Local Sanctuary?

Expanding local sanctuaries like DonkeyLand could be an option. DonkeyLand has been actively involved in rescuing and rehabilitating donkeys. They argue they have the capacity for more animals than the county acknowledges. There's potential for expanding their facilities to control overpopulation without mass relocation through castration if funding and community support are increased.

Educational and Enforcement Efforts: AI suggested that, "strengthening laws and enforcement against feeding donkeys in residential areas could help prevent them from congregating in unsafe places like roads.[Haven't we tried that?] Education campaigns could inform residents about the dangers of feeding wildlife, potentially reducing human-donkey interactions that lead to accidents or over-reliance on human-provided food." (citing NBC/LAist)

Might it be possible to improve or preserve natural habitats to support the donkey population without encouraging them into urban areas? This includes managing water sources and vegetation to keep donkeys in less populated areas.
